Jazz Links Jazz Master Residency/Professional Development Program
Program Descriptions

Residency Programs Available in eight (8) sessions - (Select ONE on Application Form)

Jazz Band Intensive (Recommended for junior high and high school jazz band or concert band classes)

The Jazz Band Intensive provides Junior High and High School musicians an invigorating opportunity to experience new jazz compositions and new ways of exploring improvisation in a large ensemble setting. Students will be provided with the tools for improvising, be exposed to different styles of jazz through listening and rehearsing, and develop knowledge in music theory. Lessons will be addressed to meet their level of experience and expertise. Teachers and their students will learn how to approach improvisation through learning and utilizing scales according to their abilities including: major and minor scales, pentatonic, dominant seventh, diminished, whole tone and chromatic scales. They will also be introduced to the concepts of chord relationships and neighboring tones. The instructor will work to help the students develop their understanding of the jazz art form appropriate to their level, and work with the teacher on how to best work with students on improvisation and jazz performance styles throughout the year. Written examples will be provided.

Beyond 5 Lines and 4 Spaces (recommended for grades 7 to 12)

This program will explore traditional practices of collective improvisation and how it has evolved into our modern concepts of collective improvisation used as a compositional content. In this residency, students will listen to and practice collective improvisational ideas from its African roots. These will include the New Orleans style, the swing band style of Fletcher Henderson in the 1930s, Sun Ra in the 1960s, Charles Mingus of the 1970s, and the present day collective Association for the Advancement of Creative Music's (AACM) Great Black Music Ensemble. Students will be able to see how our musical language has continued to evolve in the last 100 years beyond our 5 lines and 4 spaces into a new graphic language. Teachers will learn how to utilize concepts of collective improvisation in their instructional methods.

The Jazz Voice (Recommended for high school vocal music classes)

The class will be exposed to all different forms of jazz from traditional to non-traditional styles. The Residency will emphasize improvising (ad libs, scat singing) and creating new arrangements. The Residency will engage students in vocal exercises which encourage creativity and imagination. Students will be provided illustrations of techniques such as inflection, dynamics, vibrato, tone and color and how they are used in jazz vocals. Students will learn songs with special phrasing, providing exposure to and practice in vocal jazz technique. Students will learn about classic jazz vocalists. Teachers and their students will learn exercises in rhythmic elements like time/feel, articulation and use of rhythms will be provided to assist with developing listening, as well as performing and speaking skills.

Jazz for Strings (Recommended for high school string programs)

A new type of experience for string players where they will study contemporary music and learn to play at least two (2) jazz standards. Students should have a level of proficiency on the instrument, i.e., ability to tune their own instrument and ability to play some scales. Developing skills on their instrument as well as honing rhythmic skills in a noncompetitive environment is a key objective, resulting in performance with a rhythm section. Composers focused on range from Bach to Miles Davis. Teachers will learn how to incorporate jazz elements and techniques into their instructional methods.

Swinging, Grooving and Beyond: Improving Musicians' Time and Rhythm
(Recommended for elementary and high school instrumental music classes)

This residency is designed to help young musicians form a solid rhythmic foundation in order to play strong, solid time and relatively complex rhythms and polyrhythm to better express their musical ideas. These classes will also strengthen the musicians' understanding of and ability to play various jazz, African, Afro-Cuban and Brazilian rhythms, and assist teachers in working with developing student rhythm sections. Good time and rhythm is aided by teaching rhythmic coordination, which involves the use of the body to work on building an internal clock. Good time and rhythm are only part of the benefit of rhythmic coordination. With the development of good time and rhythm throughout the body, comes better overall coordination that pervades our everyday physical movement, which can last a lifetime.

Creative Music/Graphic Notation  (Recommended for elementary or high school instrumental music classes. General music classrooms can be accommodated)

In a regular music education setting, students learn to play and absorb music through conventional notation. Often this leaves students behind who do not grasp the written notation concepts easily. In graphic notation, there are no rights or wrongs, but students are guided towards genuine self-expression through art, use of mathematics, listening exercises, visualizations, all resulting in music through composed pieces written entirely through the method of graphic notation. Suitable for all proficiency levels within classroom structure. Teachers will learn how to use elements of creative music and graphic notation in their classrooms.

Latin Jazz (Joplin, Puente, Gillespie, and Beyond: The Evolution of Latin Jazz)
(Recommended for elementary or high school instrumental music classes. General music classrooms can be accommodated)

The residency is designed as an introduction to the evolution of essential Afro-Cuban musical styles, rhythms, and instruments that are the foundation of music marketed as Latin jazz. Topics to be covered are: The history and African roots of Latin American music, and the evolution of Latin Jazz in the Americas. Students and Teachers will receive instruction in basic performance techniques of Afro Cuban percussion and featured "Latin Jazz standards" written in these essential musical styles. This residency is recommended for grades 5 thru 8 and high school instrumental ensembles.
Jazz Links Jazz Masters Residency/Professional Staff Development Program

The Program incorporates the following eight National Standards into its approach:

1) Singing, alone with others, a varied repertoire of music
2) Performing on instruments, alone and with others, a varied repertoire of music
3) Improvising melodies, variations, and accomplishments
4) Reading and notating music
5) Listening to, analyzing, and describing music
6) Evaluating music and music performances
7) Understanding relationships between music, the other arts, & disciplines outside the arts
8) Understanding music in relation to history and culture

The Program focuses on the CPS Framework for Teaching Domain 3: Instruction:

Domain 3 contains the components that are essential to the heart of teaching - the actual engagement of students in learning as they develop complex understanding and participate in a community of learners. Students are engaged in meaningful work, which carries significance beyond the next test and is relevant to students' lives.
